

SAVE FOOD SHARE FOOD

A huge quantity of food is thrown away or wasted, even as millions are unable to afford even one square meal a day. Food waste also leads to adverse effects on the environment. The 'Save Food, Share Food' initiative promotes practices to reduce food loss and wastage in the supply chain and encourages surplus food donation by food businesses to those in need. An ecosystem of food collection & distribution agencies has been created with regulatory support to facilitate safe food collection and distribution to benefit both people and the planet.

Features

1

Food Safety and Standards (Recovery and distribution of surplus food) Regulations, 2019

2

Indian Food Sharing Alliance (IFSA), a network of food collection and distribution agencies

3

- Guidance documents for
- o Citizens
 - o Food businesses
 - o Food recovery agencies

Stakeholders

Surplus Food Distribution Agencies

Food Businesses and their Associations

Beneficiaries

Food Safety Departments of States/UTs

All Supply Chain Related Businesses

Funding Parters/ Agencies

Related Government Departments and Ministries

savefood.sharefood@gmail.com

www.sharefood.fssai.gov.in